Zombie Con?

The campground is overrun with the Walking Dead!

Picnic tables are up-ended, the camp sites are in ruin, the ground is littered with half-eaten marshmallows and a variety of body parts.

People are discussing zombie facts, hoping to remember best practices for handling such an outbreak. Apparently, zombies have been found all over the world, including Europe, Asia, North America, Africa, and the Middle East.

Where are the staff and volunteers? Who could have imagined the Walking Dead taking over? Can you help save Camp Gamicon? Are you ready to face the zombie challenges?

Is this for real, or is it some gamified adventure cooked up by Ian Coleman for the Friday Night Game Garage?

Either way...we must deal with the zombies, clean up camp, and manage whatever challenges come our way as a result of these terrifying circumstances!

Help us save Camp GamiCon!

The Gamification Quest Podcast

Each month I interview a guest who has implemented gamification in an Employee Engagement, HR, Onboarding, Training or Adult Education programs. With each podcast we create a BONUS item, a free download of a brief case study of the interviewee's gamified program: the challenge, the approach to solve, gamification strategy, design process, and outcomes. With the abundance of gamified learning programs from L&D, HR, and Adult Education in my network, I thought it was time to put real-life case studies in the hands of our listeners. We're very excited as our podcast has received repeated recognition and acclaim for its contribution to the conversations on the gamification of learning.
